THE FLOWERS COLLECTION

LITTLE EVA

The Flower OF THE SOUTH.

Stereotyped by VINCENT L. DILL, 128 Fulton Street.

LITTLE EVA, THE FLOWER OF THE SOUTH.

LITTLE Eva lived in the bright sunny South, in the State of Alabama. She was the only daughter of a wealthy planter, who owned many slaves, and a large plantation. Eva was the joy and pride of her parents, she obeyed them in everything; she had a smile or a kind word for all; she is called the Flower of the South.

Stereotyped by VINCENT L. DILL, 128 Fulton Street.

EVA, TEACHING THE ALPHABET.

Here you see, is little Eva teaching the little colored boys and girls the alphabet. See how pleased they are, for they all love Eva, and would do anything to please her; and Eva takes a great deal of pleasure in teaching them and making them happy. She is teaching them the letters one by one, which she marks on the black-board.

Stereotyped by VINCENT L. DILL, 128 Fulton Street.

EVA VISITING HER OLD NURSE.

Eva does not forget her friends, for she calls on her old nurse every day, to give her comfort and bring her all the news that is going about, for her nurse is very old and sick. Eva has just brought her some chicken broth; the nurse is always glad to see Eva, and she loves to talk of the time when Eva was a dear little baby.

Stereotyped by VINCENT L. DILL, 128 Fulton Street.

EVA READING THE BIBLE.

It is Sabbath morning, and Eva as usual, is reading the Bible to the colored people; she has learned some of them to read, but they would rather hear Eva read than read themselves, for they say her voice is so sweet; and she always explains all the questions they ask her so pleasantly, that it is a greater pleasure to hear her.

Stereotyped by VINCENT L. DILL, 128 Fulton Street.

EVA, TAKING A MORNING RIDE.

Eva rises early like all good children. Sometimes, when the weather is clear and beautiful, she takes a walk, and gathers a pretty bunch of flowers for her dear mother, who is very fond of them. Eva is riding a pony this morning, she is not afraid of him, for he is a very kind and gentle animal, he sometimes follows her like a dog.

Stereotyped by VINCENT L. DILL, 128 Fulton Street.

SAM, SAVING LITTLE EVA FROM DROWNING.

Eva has fallen into the water. See how the poor dog is swimming to save her, but he is too late, for Sam is taking her safely out. Poor Eva, she was reaching to catch hold of some grass which grew in the water, when she lost her balance and fell; but she is safe now. She will remember not to play again near the water.

Stereotyped by VINCENT L. DILL, 128 Fulton Street.

LITTLE EVA'S BIRTH-DAY.

This is Eva's birth-day. She is just nine years old; there is double rejoicing, both because Eva was saved from drowning, and because it is her birth-day. See, she is presenting Sam with a beautiful Bible, as a token of her esteem. Eva's parents were so pleased with Sam for saving Eva, that they gave him his freedom; but he never left them, he loved them all too well.
